HEALTH CENTRES - Arbat Refugee Camp and IDP Camp (Sulaimaniya, Iraq)

EMERGENCY, in collaboration with the local health authorities and international agencies present in the region, has built and is managing two health centres in the Arbat region, approximately 30 kilometres south of the capital of the province of Sulaimaniya where the organisation has been running other projects since 1996.

The first facility in the Camp was opened in the summer of 2013, since when around 3000 refugees have arrived, fleeing the war in Syria. Around 50% of the population are children.

The most common illnesses are infections, especially upper respiratory tract infections (URTI), but also infections of the eyes and urinary tract. At times patients include very young babies, born in the camps. Patients whose condition needs to be stabilised are treated in the small observation ward, which is equipped with an emergency trolley; patients in a critical condition may be transferred to hospital by ambulance. Local workers manage the pharmacy and carry out laboratory analyses.

The local Department of Health (DOH) supplies personnel for the management of prenatal care programmes, vaccinations, growth checks (up to five years of age) and health and hygiene education; all this activity takes place in the centre under the supervision of the international EMERGENCY staff.

Due to the worsening crisis and the growing number of internally displaced people in the camps, EMERGENCY has since opened another small clinic in Arbat - the designated IDP Camp - a few minutes' drive from the first Camp.

HEALTH CENTRE - Qoratu and Tazade IDP Camps (Kalar, Iraq)

In Qoratu and in Tazade, in the Kalar area, our staff is at work to open and start the activities of two new Health Centres, to offer free basic healthcare to the inhabitants of the Idp camps.

The Health Centre in the Qoratu Idp camp started activities in May 2015, to offer basic healthcare to the people living in the camps.

While we were waiting to open the Qoratu Health Centre, our staff worked on a mobile clinic to offer free basic healthcare to the Iraqi refugees living in the Salah-Aga area and in the village of Qoratu, now hosted in the Qoratu Idp camp.
